NEWS AND VIEWS FOR OUR BLACK QUEENS

The professional collective for women of color is missioned to establish economic equity for multicultural women in business and entrepreneurship

WASHINGTON, DC -
Today, Walker's Legacy, a professional collective committed to the empowerment of women of color in business and entrepreneurship, recognizes African American Women's Equal Pay Day.

Despite substantial gains in education, the National Committee for Pay Equity reports that Black women only earn 60 cents to a man's dollar while women, in general, earn 78 cents.

This means that as it stands, Black women must work a year and eight months just to earn what their White male counterparts earn in a twelve-month year.

African American Women's Equal pay day highlights the substantial discrimination and challenges this group of women experience in their professional lives. These challenges - such as a lack of workplace support and racially-based pay discrimination - stretch to the overall lack of resources for working or entrepreneurial Black women and their families which disproportionately single-parent led despite the fact that more than one-third are led by working mothers.

More specifically:

- Black women have historically and presently, had a higher labor participation rate than the national average at 59.9% versus the 56.4% rate of White, non-Hispanic women.

- Black women earn 66% of bachelor's degrees, 71% of master's degrees, and 65% of all doctorate degrees awarded to Black students

- Despite this level of academic attainment, research finds that black women earn $2 less per hour than their male counterparts.

- Women-owned firms make up 28% of the 2.71 million businesses in the US. While minorities own 21.3% of businesses. Yet, women do not have adequate access to financial capital in comparison to their White counterparts, halting the opportunity for growth and job opportunities.

- Black women are a part of the fastest growing entrepreneurial segments in the country growing at rates of 133.3% and 191.4% respectively from 1997 to 2007, and are five times more likely to start a business than their male counterparts.

"Black women are disproportionately affected by the barriers associated with the gender pay gap. We know that economic equality is achievable for this community of women, in 2016, despite making major ground in education, it is simply unacceptable that gender and race inequity cost Black women eight months of pay each year" said Natalie M. Cofield, Founder and CEO, Walker's Legacy.

"Our work is committed to the empowerment and success of women, and today we note the charge to continue to do more to ensure that progress is made."

About Walker's Legacy...

BLACK WOMEN PHYSICIANS CELEBRATE 35 YEARS AND SALUTE TWO AMAZING HONOREES

*The Star Gala: Celebrating a Spectacular Past,
Illuminating a Brighter Future*

LOS ANGELES, CA -- On October 1, 2016, the Association of Black Women Physicians will open its welcome door inviting everyone to celebrate their 35th Anniversary of successful community giving and health education that has empowered generations of Black women. Pat Harvey, CBS2/KCAL9 award-winning and internationally recognized broadcast journalist, will receive the Humanitarian of the Year Award. Her career has been stellar.

The Lifetime Achievement Award deservingly will be presented to Dr. Alice Tolbert Coombs. Her incredible journey began in Compton, CA and led her to medical training at the prestigious Mass General Hospital and Presidency of the Massachusetts Medical Society. Both honorees are truly outstanding Black women.

Just as Radio KJLH host Adai Lamar wakes up Los Angeles every weekday morning, she will certainly keep this audience awake as the Mistress of Ceremony. This Annual Charity and Scholarship Benefit funds scholarships for extraordinary medical students. This year, $30,000 will be awarded to these exceptional women who, in turn, will provide future culturally sensitive medical care targeted to impact underserved patients and communities. The Benefit also funds the numerous signature community and medical programs sponsored by ABWP.

The Star Gala will be filled with many other unforgettable surprises beginning at 6pm on October 1, 2016 at the JW Marriott L.A. LIVE at 900 W. Olympic Blvd, Los Angeles, CA. For more information, visit www.blackwomenphysicians.org or call (310) 881-2761.

About ABWP

Founded in 1982, the Association of Black Women Physicians consistently has addressed the health and wellness of underserved communities and the physicians who care for them. These volunteers conduct community health education workshops, advocate medical legislative issues, serve as mentors and raise scholarship funds for deserving medical students. ABWP is an award-winning association recognized by multiple national and California medical organizations including the California Medical Association Foundation and the National Medical Association.

FORMER ABUSE VICTIM SAYS, "HEALING FROM TRAUMA NEVER FELT THIS GOOD!"; RELEASES NEW E-BOOK TO HELP OTHERS

Nationwide (BlackNews.com) -- Vie Ciné is a survivor's empowerment advocate, and she makes it her business to discuss taboo topics such as sexual abuse.

She is new to the literary world with her first self-published book entitled Memoirs of a Forgotten Child available now on Amazon.com.

Her journey began towards the end of her Bachelors of Arts Psychology program at Cambridge College while interning for The Home For Little Wanderers.

After graduating, Vie branched into the non-profit field for employment. As a case manager at ABCD Head Start, she managed disadvantaged families led by women from different cultural backgrounds.

During this period, Vie decided to write about her life, which included her story of abuse.

Sarah Rector: One of the richest little girls in America in 1914

Sarah Rector as an adult

Little Sarah Rector, a former slave, who became one of the richest little girls in America in 1914.

Sarah was born in 1902 on Indian Territory in what is now Oklahoma. She was the daughter of slaves who had been owned by Creek Indians before the civil war.

In 1887, the Dawes Severalty Act forced members of the Choctaw, Creek, Cherokee, Seminole and Chickasaw to divide up their land and farm it in the hopes that by becoming farmers they would become “civilized” like the white man.

When Oklahoma became a state, they would be assimilated into white ways.

The land was given to both Indian and their former Black slaves.

The best surplus lands that were ideal for farming were given to White people to live on.

In 1906, Sarah Rector was given a small, poor quality subdivision of land that was worth only 566 dollars... in 1911 an oil gusher was discovered to be on Sarah's land.

Sarah's oil reserve had the potential to bring in $50,000 dollars a month.

On June 18, 1914, James C. Waters Jr, a special agent for the NAACP, sent a memo to WEB Dubois.

Waters had been corresponding with the Indian Affairs Office and the US Children's Bureau over concerns of the mismanagement of Sarah Rector's estate. He wrote of her white financial guardian

“Is it not possible to have her cared for in a decent manner and by people of her own race, instead of by a member of a race which would deny her and her kind the treatment accorded a good yard dog?”

This prompted Dubois to establish a Children's Department of the NAACP.

Rector as a little girl which would investigate claims of wealthy, white oil tycoons who had been scheming Black Children out of their land and depriving them of their rights as land owners.

In an effort to protect Rector from "Greedy White Men," Booker T. Washington arranged for her to receive a quality education at the Children's School in the Tuskegee institute. Washington wanted her greedy white financial guardian to be fired and replaced by a trustworthy member of her own race, but this never happened.

However, Washington got a $1,000 farmhouse for her, nicer clothes and petitioned the Muskogee County Court for Sarah to have more control over her own estate.

At the age of 10 years old, while she was still a student at Tuskegee children's school, Sarah Rector received hundreds of letters from WHITE MEN who wanted to be a suitor and or marry the girl once she got older just so they could inherit her land. Some white men from as far as Germany wrote to her.

Booker T. Washington called on "The National Federation of Women's Clubs," an organization which his wife was President of, and made them aware of the white suitors who were after Sarah's money.

He cautioned them to make sure that Sarah stayed focused on her school and married a suitable man of her own race.

At the age of 20, Rector married Kenneth Campbell, a business man, and settled in Kansas City, Mo where she lived in a mansion.

However the Missouri Legislature revised its majority Law and stated that the legal age to be guardian of one's own property was no longer 18, but 21.

A white man named John Collins petitioned to become legal guardian of her estate as she and her parents were swindled out of her money and estate by greedy white men.

She was fortunate that she had the support of the NAACP and Booker T. Washington who made sure that she got her rights to her land.

As she became comfortable with saying, "I'm writing a book about my life and molestation" without the fear of judgment by others, this encouraged many women to confide in her about their stories of abuse.

These constant run-ins where she met victims across racial, economic, and generational lines confirmed to Vie that her story must be told to encourage victims to also tell their story. She created the hashtag #readtoheal for this particular reason.

Vie's purpose is to break down the walls of shame, guilt, and fear stemming from childhood abuse.

"Survivorship can be achieved but you must confront the past, heal from trauma, and this all starts by speaking your truth!"

In January 2015, Memoirs of a Forgotten Child was born from five notebooks filled with back to back vivid details about her childhood.

Memoirs of a Forgotten Child is centered around childhood abuse. Growing up in a Haitian-American household reined by her Haitian single mother, Vie Ciné battled sexual abuse, physical abuse, verbal abuse, and emotional abuse.

As with many victims, she felt ashamed, fearful, and guilty to verbalize the taboo abuses but found outlets to strive while hiding these horrendous acts.

Her story is one of many stories that go on behind the closed doors of picturesque families.

Many adult victims live healthy lives yet are scared to speak their truth due to many factors, but the main one, brokenness. As Vie says, "When you're a survivor, you can tell who's a victim, it's like a radar. You can just tell."

Often we hear stories about people who've been abused or gone through traumatic events, but we mostly focus on life before trauma and life after trauma. The middle where most of the lessons brewed, we skim over.

This middle section is where Vie Ciné explored thoroughly because of how it affects the development of a child, and there's no better narrator than in the first person. Vie speaking as if she is experiencing the abuses as the reader turns the pages is necessary because it gives the reader a chance to see trauma from a child's perspective.

These events will ultimately shape Vie and set the stepping stones for how she saw herself in a world that was organized as prey or predator.

Putting pen to paper to illustrate a journey towards healing, survivorship, and purpose is the ultimate message. Discussing uncomfortable subjects like child sexual abuse makes it possible to bridge the gap of understanding in addition to creating methods to keeping our children safe.

As Vie says, "It's imperative that these acts of wrongdoing do not continue unchecked for it's our children who pay the highest cost." Memoirs of a Forgotten Child by Vie Ciné can be purchased now on Amazon.com at www.amazon.com/gp/aw/d/B01IFSFDY6?pc_redir=T1. FWO COMMENTARY: Hillary Clinton Stands on the Shoulders of Shirley Chisholm

Written by Marc Morial, President and CEO of the National Urban League, from his “To Be Equal” column

“Women in this country must become revolutionaries. We must refuse to accept the old, the traditional roles and stereotypes... We must replace the old, negative thoughts about our femininity with positive thoughts and positive action affirming it, and more. But we must also remember that we will be breaking with tradition, and so we must prepare ourselves educationally, economically, and psychologically in order that we will be able to accept and bear with the sanctions that society will immediately impose upon us.” — Shirley Chisholm

The nation has marked the historic occasion of the first woman in American history to win the Presidential nomination for a major political party.

While Hillary Clinton has come further than any woman Presidential candidate, she is not the first. Victoria Woodhull ran as the candidate for the Equal Rights Party in 1872.

Shirley Chisholm

Margaret Chase Smith challenged Barry Goldwater for the Republican nomination in 1964. More recently,

Pat Schroeder in 1988 and Carol Moseley Braun in 2004 vied for the Democratic nomination.

But the most historically significant forerunner to Hillary Clinton was Shirley Chisholm, the Brooklyn-born trailblazer who was also the nation’s first African-American Congresswoman.

The daughter of working-class immigrants from the Caribbean, Chisholm became interested in politics while serving as the director of a child day care center and an educational consultant for the New York City Division of Day Care.

She served three years as a New York State Assemblywoman before running for Congress in 1968 with the slogan: "Unbought and Unbossed."

“My greatest political asset, which professional politicians fear, is my mouth, out of which come all kinds of things one shouldn’t always discuss for reasons of political expediency,” Chisholm said.

Chisholm hired only women for her staff, half of whom were African Americans. “Of my two handicaps, being female put many more obstacles in my path than being Black,” she said.

She announced her candidacy for President at a Baptist church in Brooklyn.

In an article about her candidacy, the Associated Press wrote, “Ironically, her major headache seems to come from Black politi-

Hillary Clinton Stands on the Shoulders of Shirley Chisholm

“They think that I am trying to take power away from them,” she said. “The Black man must step forward. But that doesn’t mean the Black woman must step back. While they’re rapping and snapping, I’m mapping.”

She competed in 14 states, winning 28 delegates to the convention. As a symbolic gesture, candidate Hubert Humphrey released his 83 Black delegates to cast their votes for Chisholm. With the votes of several other delegates at that contentious convention, Chisholm finished fourth in a field of 13, with 152 delegates.

It is hard to imagine, in this era of sharp division in politics, the remarkable moment during that campaign when she visited her segregationist rival, Alabama Governor George Wallace, in his hospital room after he was shot and wounded.

“What are your people going to say?” he asked her. “I know what they are going to say,” she said. “But I wouldn’t want what happened to you to happen to anyone.” She recalled that her words moved him to tears. Chisholm retired from Congress in 1982 and remained an outspoken activist for civil rights until her death in 2005. It would be difficult to overestimate the impact and influence of Chisholm’s Congressional service and Presidential candidacy. While Congress remains disproportionately White and male, one-in-five members of the current House and Senate are a racial or ethnic minority, making the 114th Congress the most diverse in history. The nation’s first African-American President is winding up his second term, and a woman – a former senator and Secretary of State – has just won the Democratic nomination for President. In her acclaimed speech on the Equal Rights Amendment in 1970, Chisholm said, “The Constitution they wrote was designed to protect the rights of White, male citizens. As there were no Black Founding Fathers, there were no founding mothers -- a great pity, on both counts. It is not too late to complete the work they left undone. Today, here, we should start to do so.”

Chisholm retired from Congress in 1982 and remained an outspoken activist for civil rights until her death in 2005.

It would be difficult to overestimate the impact and influence of Chisholm’s Congressional service and Presidential candidacy.

While Congress remains disproportionately White and male, one-in-five members of the current House and Senate are a racial or ethnic minority, making the 114th Congress the most diverse in history. The nation’s first African-American President is winding up his second term, and a woman – a former senator and Secretary of State – has just won the Democratic nomination for President.

In her acclaimed speech on the Equal Rights Amendment in 1970, Chisholm said, “The Constitution they wrote was designed to protect the rights of White, male citizens. As there were no Black Founding Fathers, there were no founding mothers -- a great pity, on both counts. It is not too late to complete the work they left undone. Today, here, we should start to do so.”

DIVORCE-40101
Case No. 16FA4285

In Re: The marriage of LEONARD D BROWN , Petitioner and Respondent
CAROLYN BROWN

THE STATE OF WISCONSIN, TO
THE PERSON NAMED ABOVE AS RESPONDENT

You are notified that the petitioner named above has filed a Petition for divorce or legal separation against you.

You must respond with a written demand for a copy of the Petition within 40 days from the day after the first date of publication.

The demand must be sent or delivered to the court at: Clerk of Court Milwaukee County Courthouse 901 N. 9th St. ROOM 104 Milwaukee WI 53233 and to LEONARD BROWN 4539 W MEDFORD AVE MILWAUKEE, WI 53216

It is recommended, but not required, that you have attorney help or represent you.

If you do not demand a copy of the Petition within 45 days, the court may grant judgment against you for the award of money or other legal action requested in the Petition and you may lose your right to object anything that is or may be incorrect in the Petition.

A judgment may be enforced as provided by law. A judgment awarding money may become a lien against any real estate you own now or in the future, and may also be enforced by garnishment or seizure of property.

You are further notified that if the parties to this action have minor children, violation of 948.31, Wis. Stats., (Interference with custody by parent or others) is punishable by fines and/or imprisonment.

If you and the petitioner have minor children, documents setting forth the percentage standard for child support established by the department under 49.22(9), Wis. Stats., and the factors that a court may consider for modification of that standard under 767.511(1m), Wis. Stats., are available upon your request from the Clerk of Court.

You are notified of the availability of information from the Circuit Court Commissioner as set forth in 767.105, Wis. Stats.

767.105 Information from Circuit Court Commissioner.

(2) Upon the request of a party to an action affecting the family, including a revision of judgment or order under sec. 767.59 or 767.451:

(a) The Circuit Court Commissioner shall, with or without charge provide the party with written information on the following, as appropriate to the action commenced:

1. The procedure for obtaining a judgment or order in the action.
2. The major issues usually addressed in such an action.
3. Community resources and family court counseling services available to assist the parties.
4. The procedure for setting modifying, and enforcing child support awards, or modifying and enforcing legal custody or physical placement judgments or orders.

(b) The Circuit Court Commissioner shall provide a party, for inspection or purchase with a copy of the statutory provisions in this chapter generally pertinent to the action.

MCJ 40TH ANNIVERSARY EVENT

Shining the Light on Beacons of our Community

ELECTION WATCH 2016
THE RESULTS

Senate incumbent Taylor defeats challenger Barnes in hotly contested primary race

Jason Fields to return to Assembly, Gwen Moore easily defeats challenger Gary George

Compiled by MCJ Staff

Incumbent state Sen. Lena Taylor handily won the most hotly anticipated, contested and discussed political race of the year, defeating her challenger, Rep. Manóla Barnes in the August 9 state primary elections.

Taylor collected 61 percent (11,430) of the votes in her fourth-district senatorial race. Despite heavy financial backing and support from the predominantly white suburb of Shorewood—and the political action group, Wisconsin Working Family Party, Barnes could only muster 39 percent (7,414) of the votes.

In what could best be described as the second most hotly contested political race in the community, incumbent Milwaukee County District Attorney John Chisholm defeated Atty. Vanessa Swanson. Chisholm received 51,460 votes (65 percent) to Swanson's 27,370 votes (35 percent). Described by local WISN-TV radio talk show host Sherwin Hughes as "a phoenix rising from the ashes," former State Rep. Jason Fields reclaimed his former District 1 Assembly seat, narrowly defeating David Gibson.

Fields collected 2,930 votes (59 percent) to Gibson's 2,062 (41 percent).

If there was ever a proverbial "snake walk," it would be the contest between incumbent U.S. Congressman Gwen Moore and former state Senator Gary George.

Figuratively speaking (and respectfully), Moore walks all over George in this primary election, receiving 85 percent of the votes (55,093) to George's poultry 15 percent (6,508 votes).

In the other senate race involving our community, Rep. LaTonya Johnson will succeed Nikita Harris Dodd in senate district six, who stepped down from the position for personal reasons.

Johnson defeated two other challengers for the seat Thomas Harrison Michael Bonds, the former president of the Milwaukee Public School's Board of Directors.

Johnson collected 9,260 votes (61 percent). The race for senate place between Harris and Bonds was tight, with Harris receiving 3,558 votes (20 percent), and Bonds 3,011 (15 percent).

In two other Assembly races in predominantly Black districts, incumbent state Rep. Leon Young retained his District 16 seat defeating Edgar Lin, Brandy Bond, and Stephen Janusz.

David Crowley will now represent the 17th Assembly district, defeating two other candidates, Kim Barnes—the daughter of the late legendary lawmaker Polly Williams—and Marcus Hurt.
