My Son's Only President: Obama Let Black Children See Their Own Possibilities

By Andre Perry Ph.D, First Posted November 8

This past Halloween, my son Robeson met President Barack Obama face-to-face at Trick or Treat at the White House.

Ditching the mask of his Transformers costume, Roby approached Obama with waves and a wide, gapped-tooth smile that exposed his glee inside.

While handing presidential candy to Roby, President Obama asked, "Where's your teeth?" Roby continued to smile with excitement before moving on to first lady Michelle.

While most are focused on the next presidency, I'm reflective about the one that's coming to a close. To protect myself from the psychological stress of this tumultuous election, I'll stay centered on those memories.

There are moments that confirm our existence in the world. The seconds Obama rubbed Roby's head in the same manner that I do confirmed more for me than for my son.

Barack Hussein Obama is the only president my 5-year-old son (about to be 6) has ever known. Roby was born witnessing his own possibilities.

Certainly, touching the president concretized that he, too, could become POTUS. He doesn't (yet) have the baggage of living with the 43 white male presidents before Obama.

For a few moments, I regressed and asked myself, "When will this happen again?"

But then I realized, my son and the other children who were born into my ancestors' realized dreams will have very different expectations. Robeson will demand representation with a very different energy than I ever could.

Just as Roby was born in his ancestors' dreams, he also shares their nightmares. Roby absorbs Trayvon Martin, Eric Garner, Michael Brown and Alton Sterling.

We live in New Orleans where you live and die in disparities. He's fully cognizant of the racialized spaces of schools, events and social circles. Roby even caught Confederate-flag Mardi Gras beads during Mardi Gras last year. My son copes with institutional racism that existed under a black president.

I have "the conversation" over and over again. But Roby doesn't imagine or hope for a seat at the table; he truly has one already claimed.

My son understands what's at stake with this election. As I rubbed Roby's head while exiting the White House grounds, Roby asked, "Why can't Obama be president again?" (In my head, I was asking the same thing.)

Children feel the stress that adults project, and for almost two years, projecting fear has been the chief campaign strategy for both parties. Advertising the personal faults of candidates can't be healthy for children, and the "Sky will fall," "All or nothing" rhetoric is just false.

An aside: Black folk have always been in danger from a "sta-

Van Jones

Van Jones powerfully explains why a Trump presidency is really terrifying

As the election results rolled in late Tuesday night and it became increasingly clear that Donald Trump was going to be the next president of the United States, Van Jones explained to two Trump supporters just why so many people are scared of those results.

"I have enough class and I was raised well enough to say when you outdo expectations, good for you," he told CNN contributors Jeffrey Lord and Kayleigh McEnany

"People have talked about a miracle but I'm hearing about a nightmare," he said. "It's hard to be a parent tonight for a lot of us. You tell your kids, 'Don't be a bully.' You tell your kids, 'Don't be a bigot.' You tell your kids 'Do your homework and be prepared.' Then you have this outcome and you have people putting children to bed tonight, and they're afraid of breakfast. They're afraid of how do I explain this to my children. I have Muslim friends who are texting me tonight saying, 'Should I leave the country?' I have families of immigrants that are terrified tonight."

He then continued:

"This was many things. This was a rebellion against the elites, true. It was a complete reinvention of politics and polls, it's true. But it was also something else. We have talked about everything but race tonight. We have talked about income, class, religion. What we haven't talked about is race. This was a whitelash. This was a white-lash against a changing country. It was a whitelash against a black president in part, and that is part of where the pain comes. And Donald Trump has a responsibility tonight to come out and reassure people that he is going to be the president of all the people who he insulted and offended and brushed aside."

NAACP Issues Statement on 2016 Presidential Election

Written by NAACP, Posted on November 10

"This beautiful fall morning represents the end of a long night filled with many midnight moments of uncertainty, voter intimidation and suppression, campaigns founded on bigotry and divisiveness as an electoral strategy.

"And yet, despite the moments of ugliness, this election season has reminded us of the beauty and strength of both the nation and of the NAACP.

"This was the first presidential election in more than 50 years where voters did not have the full protection of the Voting Rights Act. We confronted all manners of ugly, unconstitutional voter suppression, including voter purging, long lines and intimidation and misinformation.

When white nationalists bragged about dispensing malt liquor and marijuana in African-American communities to suppress the vote, we were neither distracted nor dissuaded from our work. When campaign operatives and candidates alike openly called for voter suppression in broad daylight and on camera, we neither flinched nor flagged in our efforts.

"The NAACP prevailed in the federal courts against voter suppression no less than nine times in recent months. In Texas, our state conferhyperbole. The safety blanket of democracy won't be given to you, regardless of outcome.

I'm under no illusion that electing the first female president will smash the "isms" Obama was ostensibly unable to destroy.

But what was confirming for me during the trip to the White House was that greater representation is needed in the position. The country needs women, Latinos, Asians, atheists, Jews and Muslims to serve in the highest office of the land.

The seeds of authentic representation that were planted for my son may not bear fruit till later, but they've been planted.

Roby is living with a different psychology of really seeing himself in the seat of power from prior generations.

My hope for Roby is that he fights for people not represented. Obama proved that we can elect someone other than a white man.

But there is always a danger that people will use their gender, race or religion as a mask to deliver the same policies as the 43 presidents before Obama.

I loved that Roby didn't want to wear a mask to meet the president. And I also love that Obama didn't wear a costume. He looked good in his sweater and slim-fit jeans.

I don't know what effects being born in Obama's first term will have on my son or other children.

Roby has a unique privilege of seeing blackness in himself, his father, Michael Brown, Alton Sterling and the president of the United States all at the same time. I just know that I have to protect my son's seat at the table so the rest of us can find out.

Do You Know the Cost of Healthcare in Retirement?

Well the reality is no one really knows. A study conducted by Fidelity Benefits Consulting reported that a couple could spend an average of $220,000 in medical expenses throughout retirement. This is a significant chunk of your retirement income and could grow each year.

Your healthcare is not just your medical expenses but also your vision, hearing and dental. AARP’s Healthcare Cost Calculator (www.aarp.org/hccc) can help you determine your cost based on specific situation.

It allows you to develop a profile that directs you to actions you can take that may lower your cost and directs you to resources that help you tackle long term health care savings goals. The tool will also factor in your Medicare cost.

Let’s take a moment to turn to Medicare, the nation’s health insurance program for persons disabled and those 65 and older. Medicare is run by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (www.cms.gov) (CMS).

There they will answer all your Medicare/Medicaid questions to help you get enrolled and find the best place for you.

To remind you and get you on track, three months before you turn 65 Medicare will send you enrollment information that will include information on Medicare Part A (covers hospital, skilled facility care, home healthcare and hospice), Part B (covers doctor visits, outpatient services and preventive care) and Part D (the prescription drug plan).

CMS will give you seven months to apply – three months prior to turning 65, the month you turn 65 and three months after you turn 65.

If you miss this application timeline you may find yourself paying higher premiums for the rest of your life; in fact, 10% higher for Part B for every 12 months you did not have coverage, but there may be exceptions like if you or your spouse is still working and have insurance.

While Medicare helps to defray the cost of your medical expenses, it’s important that you know what your out of pocket cost will be.

In addition, if you choose to purchase Part D prescription drug coverage from a Medicare-approved insurance company that should be factored in your cost as well. It is essential that you select the right plan for you and revisit your plan yearly (open enrollment October 15 – December 7) to make sure your existing plan continues to meets your health care needs.

When considering coverage there are few things to think about – are the services you need covered; does your doctor accept your coverage; do you have to choose your health providers and hospital from a network; and, do you need a referral to see a specialist?

With regard to cost, how much are your premiums, deductibles and other; do you have to pay for hospital stays or doctor visits; is there a yearly limit on your out of pocket medical cost; and what are your prescription drug cost under your plan and are your required drugs on the approved list to be covered? All of this is important as you manage your retirement expenses.

You don’t want all your income going to your health care cost - remember you have retirement goals that you want to achieve as well.

NAACP Statement on Presidential Election

ence saved 608,470 votes with a victorious decision from the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. In North Carolina, our state conference saved nearly five percent of the electorate when the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit ruled that the state legislature had enacted discriminatory voting laws that intentionally targeted and disenfranchised black voters. And, just days ago, the NAACP saved nearly 4,500 voters from being purged from the North Carolina rolls.

“The last five days of the campaign, after many months in planning, we formally launched our Selma Initiative, to protect the right to vote. We targeted 6,022 precincts in 17 states, dispatching both lawyers and laypeople alike to guard the ballot box and safeguard the rights of voters standing in long lines through our national command center.

“Altogether, we mobilized our two million digital activists, nearly half million card-carrying members, 2,200 local units, and more than a hundred partner organizations to both protect and get out the vote through the Selma Initiative.

“History will judge not only the courage of our volunteers but also the cowardice of those who chose again and again to suppress the vote rather than listen to the voice of democracy this year.

“History may take note of the Selma Initiative, but let us all now remember Shena Goode, a 79-year-old NAACP volunteer who not only organized a virtual phone bank in her apartment complex, but also made more than 200 calls in a single day to get out the vote.

“Her story is the story of the NAACP and the nation. When civil rights are threatened, we are as persistent as we are determined.

“Now that the election is over, the first priority for a new Congress and a new president must be restoring the badly-broken Voting Rights Act.

“We cannot afford to send untold teams of lawyers to court and spend incalculable sums of money to defend our right to vote in the courts and in the streets again and again and again.

“Any effort to suppress the vote, whether at the hands of lawmakers, judges or everyday people, is and must continue to be considered unjust, un-American and utterly unacceptable. The NAACP will not rest until full and equal voting rights are restored for each and every American citizen.”

Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate Tim Kaine’s letter

Friend,

I’m as disappointed as anyone. We had the opportunity to elect a candidate -- the first woman president -- who would have brought people together, created jobs, strengthened our nation’s leadership across the globe, and opened up ladders of opportunity for countless Americans.

It pains me to say that Hillary Clinton is not going to be our next president. I couldn’t have been more honored to serve as her running mate. Anne and I did over 900 events in 40 states during the 105 days we were on the campaign -- 105 days we will always look back on with pride.

But this isn’t a time to give up.

We need to strengthen our resolve to fight against injustice, break the gridlock in Congress, and use government to make people’s lives better.

And I’m going to be enlisting the help of each and every one of you to help make that happen.

Part of what has always made America great is that, no matter who you are or where you come from, we all agree to respect the same process. We choose our elected leaders with ballots, not bullets and tanks.

So I want to congratulate Donald Trump and Mike Pence on their victory.

I traveled all across the country during the course of this campaign. I visited red states and blue states, urban communities and rural ones, and spoke with individuals of every creed and color who love this country and want the best for it.

All of our elected officials owe it to the citizens of this country to try to put this divisive election behind us, and focus on the hard work of making government work for our people.

It all goes back to a very simple belief: We need to do all the good we can and serve one another.

That is what I’m about. And it’s why, in the Senate, I’m committed to working with both parties and president-elect Trump to find the common ground to move our country forward.

I want to thank all of you who poured your hearts, just as I did, into this campaign. Every time you were asked to help, you delivered.

Tuesday night was hard. But there is important work ahead. We are still stronger together. And together, we can help shape a better future.

ELECTION WATCH 2016 THE RESULTS

Senate incumbent Taylor defeats challenger Barnes in hotly contested primary race

Jason fields to return to Assembly, Gwen Moore easily defeats challenger Gary George

Compiled by MCJ Staff

Incumbent state Sen. Lena Taylor handily won the most hotly anticipated, contested and discussed political race of the year, defeating her challenger, Rep. Mandela Barnes in the August 9 state primary elections.

Sen. Lena Taylor

Taylor collected 61 percent (11,430) of the votes in her fourth district senatorial race. Despite heavy financial backing and support from the predominantly white suburb of Shorewood—and the political action group, Wisconsin Working Family Party, Barnes could only muster 39 percent (7,414) of the votes.

Jason Fields

In what could best be described as the second most hotly contested political race in the community, incumbent Milwaukee County District Attorney John Chisholm defeated Atty. Verona Swannigan. Chisholm received 51,466 votes (65 percent) to Swannigan's 27,570 votes (35 percent).

Described by local WNOV radio talk show host Sherwin Hughes as "a phoenix rising from the ashes," former State Rep. Jason Fields reclaimed his former District 11 Assembly seat, narrowly defeating Daniel Gibson.

Fields collected 2,930 votes (59 percent) to Gibson's 2,062 (41 percent).

If there were ever a proverbial "redox walk," it would be the contest between incumbent U.S. Congresswoman Gwen Moore and former state Senator Gary George.

Figuratively speaking (and expected), Moore walks all over George in this primary election, receiving 85 percent of the votes (55,093) to George's poultry 15 percent (6,508 votes).

In the other senate race involving our community, Rep. LaToya Johnson will succeed Nikiya Harris Dodd in senate district six, who stepped down from the position for personal reasons.

Johnson defeated two other challengers for the seat Thomas Harris and Michael Bonds, the former president of the Milwaukee Public School's Board of Directors.

Johnson collected 9,360 votes (61 percent). The race for second place between Harris and Bonds was tight, with Harris receiving 3,158 votes (20 percent), and Bonds 3,011 (15 percent).

In two other Assembly races is predominately Black districts, incumbent state Rep. Leon Young retained his District 16 seat defeating Edgar Lin, Brandy Bond, and Stephen Jansen.

David Crowley will now represent the 17th Assembly district, defeating two other candidates, Kim Burns—the daughter of the late legendary lawmaker Polly Williams—and Marcus Hurt.

Prepare Yourself for Winter Weather and Emergencies with Survival Kits for Your Home and Car

- Listen to weather forecasts.
- Check your emergency supplies.
- Have your chimney or flue inspected each year.

- Install a smoke detector and a battery-operated carbon monoxide detector. Test the batteries each month and replace them twice a year.
 - Weatherproof your home.
 - Bring your pets indoors during the winter.
- Prepare for extremely cold weather every winter—it's always a possibility. There are steps you can take in advance for greater wintertime safety in your home.
- Prepare Your Home for Winter
- Although periods of extreme cold cannot always be predicted far in advance, weather forecasts can sometimes provide vide you with several days' notice. Listen to weather forecasts regularly and check your emergency supplies whenever a period of extreme cold is predicted.

If you plan to use a fireplace or wood stove for emergency heating, have your chimney or flue inspected each year. Ask your local fire department to recommend an inspector or find one in the yellow pages of your telephone directory under "chimney cleaning."

Also, if you'll be using a fireplace, wood stove, or kerosene heater, install a smoke detector and a battery-operated carbon monoxide detector near the area to be heated. Test them monthly and replace batteries twice a year. All fuel-burning equipment should be vented to the outside.

Your ability to feel a change in temperature decreases with age. Older people are more susceptible to health problems caused by cold. If you are over 65 years old, place an easy-to-read thermometer in an indoor location where you will see it frequently. Check the temperature of your home often during the winter months.

Insulate any water lines that run along exterior walls so your water supply will be less likely to freeze. To the extent possible, weatherproof your home by adding weather-stripping, insulation, insulated doors, and storm windows or thermal-pane windows.

If you have pets, bring them indoors. If you cannot bring them inside, provide adequate shelter to keep them warm and make sure they have access to unfrozen water.

- Checklist
- Insulate walls and attic.
 - Caulk and weather-strip doors and windows.
 - Install storm windows or cover windows with plastic from the inside.
 - Insulate any water lines that run along outer walls. This will make water

- less likely to freeze.
- Service snow-removal equipment.
 - Have chimney and flue inspected.
 - Install easy-to-read outdoor thermometer.
 - Repair roof leaks and cut away tree branches that could fall on your home or other structure during a storm.

Prepare Your Car for Winter

You can avoid many dangerous winter travel problems by planning ahead. Have maintenance service on your vehicle as often as the manufacturer recommends. In addition, every fall:

- Have the radiator system serviced, or check the antifreeze level yourself with an antifreeze tester. Add antifreeze, as needed.
- Replace windshield-wiper fluid with a wintertime mixture.
- Replace any worn tires, and check the air pressure in the tires.

During winter, keep the gas tank near full to help avoid ice in the tank and fuel lines.

- Winter Survival Kit for Your Home
- Keep several days' supply of these items:
- Food that needs no cooking or refrigeration, such as bread, crackers, cereal, canned foods, and dried fruits. Remember baby food and formula if you have young children.
 - Water stored in clean containers, or

- purchased bottled water (5 gallons per person) in case your water pipes freeze and rupture.
- Medicines that any family member may need.
- If your area is prone to long periods of cold temperatures, or if your home is isolated, stock additional amounts of food, water, and medicine.

Winter Survival Kit for Your Car

Equip your car with these items:

- blankets
- first aid kit
- a can and waterproof matches (to melt snow for water)
- windshield scraper
- booster cables
- road maps
- mobile phone
- compass
- tool kit
- paper towels
- bag of sand or cat litter (to pour on ice or snow for added traction)
- tow rope
- tire chains (in areas with heavy snow)
- collapsible shovel
- container of water and high-calorie canned or dried foods and a can opener
- flashlight and extra batteries
- canned compressed air with sealant (for emergency tire repair)
- brightly colored cloth

Flu can make you miss work, school or even be hospitalized.

Get a flu vaccine to protect yourself and your loved ones.
