City leaders unveil "Summer Policing Plan," an effort to reduce crime and fear

Article by Ashley Sears, courtesy of Fox6now.com

Milwaukee Common Council President Ashanti Hamilton, Milwaukee Police Chief Ed Flynn, Milwaukee Mayor Tom Barrett, and other aldermen, including Bob Donovan and Jose Perez on Tuesday unveiled the Milwaukee Police Department's "Summer Policing Plan" -- an effort to reduce both crime and fear in the city.

"All Milwaukeeans deserve a safe summer," Barrett said.

According to a statement from the Mayor's Office, the goals of this plan include reducing crime, improving neighborhood quality of life, building mutual trust with residents and strengthening partnerships with neighborhood stakeholders.

"High rates of fear drive people from public spaces, remove informal social control and create a climate for crime," Flynn said.

The city leaders held a news conference Tuesday at 4:00 p.m. near 13th and Mitchell. They said this plan involves building on what they have already done.

This is a joint effort involving the Milwaukee Police Department, Mayor's Office and Milwaukee Common Council.

The goal, these leaders say, is not only to reduce crime in Milwaukee, but also to improve the quality of life for those who live here.

Part of the plan includes putting more beat cops on the street.

"More people will see them in more public spaces and create the sensibility that we are available in those spaces to encourage people to use them," Flynn said.

Chief Flynn said this will help stop crime and reduce fear.

Barrett said crime is down in most areas of the city -- and that includes homicides (down 23%) and robberies (down 9%), but there has been an increase in carjackings (up 5%).

"We're certainly aware of it and we're continuing to focus on it," Flynn said.

Barrett said he wants everyone to feel safe here in Milwaukee.

"I want people who live here and visit here to feel safe and more importantly, be safe. We have to make sure we're doing everything we can," Barrett said.

"It's full speed ahead this summer. We're anxious to get started and we recognize people are depending upon us," Flynn said.

PULSE OF THE COMMUNITY

Question and Photos by Yvonne Kemp

"I played centerfield for the Fort Lauderdale Braves. We toured Florida to Georgia. All of our pitchers had sore arms and couldn't pitch. I became the pitcher for that game and pitched a eight inning game with no hits."

Roosevelt Jackson

"I played on the Satchel Paige All-Stars. Satchel arrived 15 minutes before game time, got dressed, three practice pitches, and went to the mound. He pitched seven innings of no hit, no run ball. He struck out the side and waved to the crowd. He and Buck O'Neill gave me my nickname, "Youngblood."

William "Youngblood" McCrary

"While playing for the Chicago American Giants, I threw out three players trying to steal (a) base. I also got four hits in the same game. We won the game and later I became a player on the team we had just beat, the New Orleans Eagles."

Ray "Boo Boy" Knox

"I hit a straight change (pitch) right in the middle of the plate. It flew 420 feet down left field for a home run. I never hit a ball that far. This was my first and last homerun."

“SUMMER VOICES!”

URBAN My DIALOGUE...

By Torre “ToeJoe” Johnson

Has Northcott Neighborhood House Been Forgotten or just Overlooked?

Being able to go somewhere safe in our communities as a child has been important for many years.

Years ago, social centers main objective was to allow children to be surrounded by, and doing, positive activities.

But in recent years, social centers have become totally dependent on evidence based--not project based--programming that's supported by funding that sometimes seemed to be distributed unfairly in the black community. This has me wondering if an organization can be forgotten.

Today my focus is on Northcott Neighborhood House, which has served this community for 55 years.

Northcott sits in a neighborhood that has recently seen some violent activity very close to its front doors. I sat looking over a short but important list of needed repairs and wondered why hasn't Northcott received the proper help it needs to continue serving the 3,000 or so individuals walking through it's doors. Northcott had, at one time, served over 10,000 people yearly. But due to a lack of funding, has had to cut back on some of its service offerings.

Though Northcott has its many challenges, it still has its strengths. Northcott continues to provide some very important programming including attaining a GED, Youth Build, food/clothes panties and other services.

Northcott is also the home of Milwaukee's Juneteenth Day Festival, which is the largest and longest running African American festivals in Wisconsin and the nation.

Although I write about what seems to be a pattern of Northcott being overlooked, today I won't overlook them. I take this opportunity to salute their administration, staff and volunteers for 55 years of community service.

Milwaukee has a responsibility and a need to embrace the importance of keeping Northcott's legacy and services alive.

Northcott is a place that, for years, has also served other organizations by allowing them to use their building for many different types of activities: meetings, conferences, and sports events. Just recently, I was there to witness a speech by Presidential Candidate Senator Bernie Sanders.

I will continue to ask how is it possible that a place in the center of our African American Community as important as Northcott Neighborhood House be forgotten and/or overlooked.

Northcott Neighborhood House has been forced to shorten its hours of operation, leaving the children it serves with nowhere to go at a time the city of Milwaukee scrambles to improve conditions in our community and eliminate violence. Northcott Neighborhood House is a community first. We must support this important and effective organization.

Finding the silver lining in recent cancer research for Black Americans

Despite its distressing implications, Medical College of Wisconsin (MCW) researcher Kristen Beyer found a silver lining in her recent research project that confirmed long held assumptions about the huge cancer disparity shouldered by African Americans living in southeastern Wisconsin.

Beyer's groundbreaking research revealed a glaring disparity of Black cancer victims as compared to Whites in the region.

The silver lining?

Her research puts to rest statistical disparity “assumptions” and replaces them with up-to-date data that, hopefully, will prompt a consensus effort by local health care organizations to address the problem.

“The report clearly shows we need to put more resources into early detection and treatment,” Beyer asserted during a recent presentation on her research findings.

“It has long been assumed that various types of cancer have a much harsher impact on the minority community than the general populations,” Beyer said.

“Now we have factual information that will hopefully fuel a (greater) response to this problem.”

The MCW has been a leader in research and application of cancer treatment. The MCW and Froedert have also created a Cancer Advisory Board (CAB) to facilitate endeavors to educate the minority population on cancer.

The CAB also advocates on behalf of that population to various local health entities within the MCW health network.

Minorities, including this reporter, are significantly represented on the CAB. Noted community activist and humanitarian Geneva Johnson is co-chair.

The CAB is currently engaged in a project funded by the Greater Milwaukee Foundation to address cancer awareness and health perceptions in the minority communities.

According to MCW research, “Cancer is currently the leading cause of death in Wisconsin, and approximately 30,000 Wisconsin residents are diagnosed with cancer each year.”

More than 11,000 die from cancer, with “African Americans suffering the greater cancer incidence and mortality disparity burdens.”

Although African American women are less likely to be diagnosed with breast cancer than White women in Wisconsin, they are more likely to succumb to the disease. Black women also have significantly higher age-adjusted incidence and mortality rates per 100,000 from colorectal cancer and lung cancer than do Whites, the research revealed.

A similar disparity pattern is observed for Black males with prostate cancer.

Beyer's research project studied the impact of various forms of cancer in southeastern Wisconsin by zip codes. It was based on estimated incident rates of various types of cancer.

The results were expected—save for a surprisingly high percentage of White women who were diagnosed

Actor JESSE WILLIAMS' BET Awards acceptance speech

The Grey's Anatomy actor received a standing ovation for his empowering speech on racism in America

"This award, this is not for me. This is for the real organizers all over the country. The activists, the civil rights attorneys, the struggling parents, the families, the teachers, the students, that are realizing that a system built to divide and impoverish and destroy us cannot stand if we do.

It's kind of basic mathematics, the more we learn about who we are and how we got here, the more we will mobilize.

Now this is also in particular for the black women, in particular, who have spent their lifetimes dedicated to nurturing everyone before themselves. We can and will do better for you.

Now what we've been doing is looking at the data and we know that police somehow manage to de-escalate, disarm and not kill white people every day. So what's going to happen is we are going to have equal rights and justice in our own country or we will restructure their function and ours.

Yesterday would've been young Tamir Rice's 14th birthday, so I don't want to hear anymore about how far we've come when paid public servants can pull a drive-by on a 12-year-old playing alone in a park in broad daylight, killing him on television then going home to make a sandwich.

Tell Rekia Boyd how it's so much better to live in 2012 than 1612 or 1712. Tell that to Eric Garner. Tell that to Sandra Bland. Tell that to Darrien Hunt.

Now the thing is though, all of us in here getting money, that alone isn't going to stop this.

Now dedicating our lives to get money just to give it right back for someone's brand on our body,

Hillary Clinton Knows the Time for Action Is Now

By Martha Love

We have witnessed too many incidents of horrific gun violence against Americans of all stripes in their safe spaces - young children at school, African Americans attending their weekly Bible study, moviegoers, office workers, and unfortunately the list grows longer each day.

This month the shock of the worst mass shooting in our nation's history occurred in the safe space of the Florida LGBT community's Pride celebration and that shock has reverberated across Orlando and the world. It is past time we act on gun violence.

Hillary Clinton understands the time for action is now.

Too many families in America have suffered from gun violence. About 33,000 Americans are killed by guns each year.

That is unacceptable. And I get it - gun ownership is an integral part of the lives of many law-abiding Americans. It's time to extend the commonsense manner in which responsible owners handle their guns to the sale and regulation of guns in our country.

Hillary has a record of advocating for commonsense approaches to reduce gun violence.

She'll strengthen background checks and close dangerous loopholes in the current system. She'll push Congress to close the loophole that allows a gun sale to go forward

Lincoln Hills Tragedy Could Have Been Averted

The recent debacle involving allegations of beatings, sexual assaults, and other forms of child physical abuse by inmates and staff at Lincoln Hills and Copper Lake juvenile facilities could have been prevented or greatly mitigated.

Indeed, a Racine judge once characterized conditions at Lincoln Hills as being “sordid and inexcusable.”

There are an innumerable of best practices that Wisconsin's Department of Corrections could entertain to avoid or minimize these problems. A best practices technique, rarely discussed, is that of a citizen's advisory board with statuif a background check has not been completed within three days.

This is the loophole that allowed the alleged Charleston shooter to buy a gun even though he had a criminal record. She strongly defended the Brady Bill, which instituted federal background checks on some gun sales, and as a senator voted to close the gun show loophole.

We need a president who will hold irresponsible gun dealers and manufacturers accountable.

In the Senate she voted against the immunity protections Congress has given gun dealers and manufacturers that prevent victims of gun violence from holding negligent manufacturers and dealers accountable.

In light of the tragic violence against Orlando community, her vote to extend and reinstate a ban on assault weapons is even more illustrative of why she should be president.

Her leadership on the issue is clear - she co-sponsored this important legislation.

These weapons do not belong on our streets and Hillary will rightfully work to reinstate that ban.

There are too many communities in America scarred by senseless gun violence. It's time to act - we need leader who will do just that. That's why Hillary Clinton has my vote this November.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

torily sanctioned monitoring and oversight capabilities.

Many correctional experts believe that independent prison oversight is a sine qua non for the safe operation of prisons for both prisoners and staff. Indeed, one of the conditions noted at Lincoln Hills/Copper Lake was that of staff battering each other!

“Oversight” is the regular monitoring and investigation, when needed, of prison conditions. But the monitoring/oversight mechanism cannot be an entity that serves at the pleasure of, or is selected by, a department of corrections. It cannot be a guild or a community relations board.

Instead, oversight should be understood as a tool that is designed to aid in the effort to professionalize the field of corrections.

Community boards with an oversight function help to guarantee that prisoners are treated with dignity and respect.

This, in turn, helps to professionalize the behavior of staff. Data also indicate that the presence of an independent community board helps to reduce ex-offender recidivism.

Statutorily-set oversight authority is common in England.

Perhaps it is time to consider the practice here. These boards, however, have been found to work better in metropolitan areas versus rural areas.

The silver lining in cancer research

with early stage breast cancer in the suburbs of Mequon and Brookfield.

The rate was also higher in Washington and Waukesha counties, areas that are predominantly White and middle class.

It was, apparently, the only form of cancer where the White rate was higher than the Black rate.

But the mortality rate was significantly higher in the Black communities of Milwaukee and Racine.

Those glaring contradictions posit that White middle class suburban women benefitted from early detection and treatment, while Black and Hispanic women either didn't receive mammograms or probably didn't undertake long-term treatment. Whether financial restrictions, accessibility to health care or ignorance are the culprits will be explored in future research.

Incidents of colorectal cancer are more consistent, although equally disturbing for Black Americans.

The incident and late stage survival rates are higher in the central city, although there was a surprisingly high occurrence in Racine and Kenosha, which are more racially diverse areas.

The same is true for lung cancer, where new and late stage continuance were far more prevalent in the urban areas of Milwaukee and Racine.

For prostate cancer, occurrence and late stage followed a similar pattern.

Consistent with national statistics, African Americans by large have the highest occurrence of prostate cancer as reflected in the MCW research project, with a somewhat smaller incidence rate as you travel north into Ozaukee County.

The south and western communities had lower rates. Late stage prostate cancer followed a similar pattern, but had higher occurrence in Mequon and Washington counties.

The study was "indirectly age standardized and smoothed using adaptive spatial filtering. A grid of points was used to estimate incident rates continuously across the (southeastern Wisconsin) map, based on the 30 closest diagnosed cases."

Beyer believes the mortality rates for African Americans can be greatly reduced through early diagnosis and specialized ongoing treatment.

"We have the technology but (sadly) not everybody is taking advantage of it," she explained.

"Mammography, for example, would provide early detection of breast cancer," but must be coupled with on-going follow up treatment she said.

The problem is not having enough screening mechanisms or facilities. And free mammograms can be obtained through a variety of agencies.

The problem, with the breast cancer mortality rate is obviously linked to follow up care.

The research "clearly shows we need to put more resources" in the central city, she advocated. "It's a sad story—one we shouldn't have to address—that too many Black and Hispanic people die or have higher rates.

Beyer said it was heartbreaking to realize that so many Black lives are unnecessarily shortened when technology and accessibility to health care could save them.

There is much debate about why African Americans have higher rates of cancer, and not being a physician, Beyer said she is not qualified to answer that question.

She noted that cancer rates between Whites and African Americans were similar through the 1980s, and that some health experts believe environmental conditions may contribute to the disparity rates.

Cultural factors also come into play. For example, smoking is one of the leading causes of lung cancer, a disease that is disproportionately affecting African Americans, who also excessively smoke. Poor diets and poverty also impact the statistics.

But with modern technology, there is a good possibility most cancers can be arrested, if not cured. The key is early detection and treatment, Beyer said.

Colon cancer is among the worse forms of cancer, but is easily detectable with a colonoscopy.

Chicago Mass Choir Headlines Gospel Showcase Fundraiser

"This is the type of family entertainment we plan to bring to the future Indaba Band Shell on a regular basis," said Tony Phillips, director of the band shell project.

Parklawn and St. Ann Center are partnering in fundraising efforts for the new venue. In traditional African culture, Indaba refers to a gathering to resolve issues affecting the village, where each individual has a voice and where there is a common story created for all to share after they leave.

"There is a wealth of talent in this neighborhood and also people of great faith," Phillips said, adding the band shell will also be a site for community worship services.

Tickets for the Gospel Showcase are $20. No tickets will be sold at the door. To purchase tickets, visit stanncenter.org/bandshell.

They are also available at the St. Ann Center Bucyrus Campus and at the Center's Stein Campus at 2801 East Morgan Avenue.

Innovation, partnership and priorities define UWM's role in community

The University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee just announced a series of Social Compact grants that will fund partnerships between UWM professors and community nonprofits focused on tackling some of Milwaukee's most pressing issues. (UWM Photo/Troye Fox)

In 2015, the White House and the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching recognized the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee for its commitment to strengthening its hometown through partnerships with more than 4,000 schools, businesses, community groups, and other local and regional organizations.

The university was named to the President's Higher Education Community Service Honor Roll and received the Carnegie Community Engagement Classification.

In 2016, UWM is deepening its commitment to key Milwaukee neighborhoods by providing eight Social Compact grants of $25,000 each.

The grants will be awarded to community organizations working directly with UWM researchers on quick-turnaround projects that address urgent issues facing the city.

"UWM can't be divorced from the city in which we sit. We're very identified with Milwaukee," said Associate Vice Chancellor for Global Inclusion and Engagement Robert Smith.

"Being engaged across the Milwaukee community is one of our values. This is what we do, and at the university, every day, we're getting calls from people in the community saying, 'Let's partner.'"

The Social Compact funding, provided to UWM by the University of Wisconsin System, is one way to answer those calls with greater urgency. The Division of Global Inclusion and Engagement at UWM will administer the grants under the guidance of Smith and Peck School of the Arts Dean Scott Emmons.

"These grants complement our community-engagement profile," explains Vice Chancellor for Global Inclusion and Engagement Joan Prince. "They're like an injection of support to ideas that have immediate traction and impact."

The Social Compact grantees include some familiar

Milwaukee institutions as well as some relative newcomers.

One grant funds an expanded partnership among the Benedict Center, Milwaukee House of Correction and the Helen Bader School of Social Welfare at UWM to help women transition from incarceration to family and community living. Among its innovations is a screening process to help identify women who are dealing with co-occurring disorders, such as substance abuse and mental health issues.

Approximately half of the women in Milwaukee who enter and leave the corrections system do not have a high school education or GED, and they report an average annual household income of less than $10,000, according to research by UWM professors.

The partnership aims to connect women to resources they need – job training, substance abuse treatment, transportation services and more – to help them stay out of prison and raise their families above the poverty line

On the northwest side, a partnership with engineering professors at UWM could get a technologically advanced, community-focused microgrid up and running.

The microgrid is an emerging state-of-the-art model for distributing renewable energy more efficiently and at lower costs to consumers.

Microgrids operate independently of massive privately owned or public utilities. With financial and technical support from UWM, this microgrid would provide energy to Milwaukee's Garden Homes neighborhood.

The university will release the full list of Social Compact grant recipients in the coming weeks. Project partners will begin working together this fall.

"We know that we have researchers who are working closely with local leaders and local community organizations to respond to a range of challenges facing the city of Milwaukee generally," Smith said, "and to disparate communities – however or wherever they are identified."

"Social Compact grants are another way we support community and university partnerships answering the call to do work vital to the city and region."

CHEW ON THIS...

By Bruce P. Hamilton, D.D.S.

Obesity & Your Oral Health...

Studies have shown that individuals affected by obesity have more oral health problems than other individuals in general. Published findings indicate that these patients have higher tooth decay levels and more missing teeth. Obese individuals between the ages of 18 & 34 were found to have a rate of periodontal disease (gum disease) 76% higher than individuals within a normal weight range.

While the connection between obesity and dental health is complex, part of the reason may be diet. The combination of bacteria (found in plaque) and food (especially food that contains sugar) causes tooth decay. As the bacteria feed on the sugars in the food you eat, they make acids, which attack the teeth 20 minutes or more after eating. Over time, these acids destroy tooth enamel resulting in decay. How is High Blood Pressure (HBP) related to your mouth?...

A protein, known as C-Reactive Protein (CRP), found in blood plasma, whose levels increase in response to inflammation, suggests that hypertension is in part an inflammatory disorder. Oral inflammation, as it relates to periodontal disease (gum disease), has also been hypothesized to play a role in the development of hypertension.

Symptoms of High Blood Pressure:

"HBP is largely a symptomless condition, often called the "silent killer".

*systolic reading of 180 or higher OR diastolic reading of 110 or higher.

In addition to extreme readings:

- Severe Headaches
- Severe Anxiety
- Shortness of Breath
- Nosebleeds

For more information on high blood pressure and its effect on your oral health, please contact a Dr. Bruce Hamilton to schedule a comprehensive dental examination @ 414.372.7374.

Cancer Research

Unfortunately, that procedure is very expensive for those without insurance. And far too many people don't enlist to have the procedure done for a variety of reasons.

"In general, we're talking about an access issue. The question is why are we seeing that as a problem in 2016. This is a great injustice, to have the technology, but it often isn't targeted to those most in need."

Which is why Beyer is happy her research project puts to rest the assumptions.

"This is a clear mandate for the health care community to do something."

And soon.

The Spinners

NATIONAL HEADLINERS ANNOUNCED FOR THE MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL A LA CARTE PRESENTED BY MEIJER AT THE MILWAUKEE COUNTY ZOO AUGUST 18-21, 2016

The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel a la Carte at the Zoo, "Feast with the Beasts," kicks off Thursday, August 18 and runs through Sunday, August 21. The Zoo is excited to announce the national headliners for this year's popular food and music festival:

LOS LOBOS – Thursday, August 18 at 8 p.m.

THE SPINNERS – Friday, August 19 at 8 p.m.

SOUL ASYLUM – Saturday, August 20 at 8 p.m.

All concerts, both local and national, are free with regular Zoo admission. There are no reserved seats, just plenty of picnic tables and grassy areas, so grab your lawn chairs and blankets, and join us for one of Milwaukee's finest fests!

In the band's early recording days, Los Lobos gained fame for their worldwide crossover hit, "La Bamba," from the 1987 film, reaching #1 on the U.S. and UK singles chart.

In 2003, when Los Lobos was celebrating the 30th anniversary of their humble beginnings as a garage band in East L.A., Rolling Stone summed up their distinctive, diverse, freewheeling fusion of rock, blues, soul and Mexican folk music."

"This is what happens when five guys create a magical sounds, then stick together...to see how far it can take them."

For more than three decades and thousands of rollicking performances across the globe, Los Lobos is still jamming with the same raw intensity as they had when they started in that garage in 1973.

Sophisticated up-tempo rhythm and blues with precision choreography defines a Spinners show.

With more than 60 million records sold in their illustrious career, the mighty Spinners have performed for Presidents, received six Grammy nominations and have appeared on countless television shows.

They boast an unbelievable 18 Solid Gold Top 40 hits including:

"Working My Way Back To You/Forgive Me, Girl!"

"Cupid" (I've Loved You For So Long)

"The Rubberband Man"

"Could It Be I'm Falling In Love"

Soul Asylum, an American alternative rock band formed in 1981, takes center stage Saturday, August 21. Noted for their 1994 Grammy award winning hit, "Run-away Train," Soul Asylum recently released its eleventh studio album, Change of Fortune, that embodies the band's trademark balance of rocking abandon, infectious melodic craft and raw-nerved emotional depth.

"People who feel disenfranchised tend to identify with Soul Asylum," band member Dave Pirner observes.

"I'll look out at the crowd and see people singing along with my songs of frustration and insecurity, and the irony is not lost on me. I love being around people who love music, and I'm very loyal to the idea of whatever Soul Asylum is."

All national entertainment perform on the Caribou Stage at the Zoo; local musicians perform on five other stages scattered throughout the park. Admission to the festival:

Adults: $14.25

Juniors (ages 3 to 12): $11.25

Children (ages 2 and under): FREE

Seniors (ages 60 and older): $13.25

Parking: $12

The 2016 festival is open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, and 9 a.m.

to 8 p.m. on Sunday. The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel a la Carte is presented by Meijer.

A “big city with a small town feel” perfectly describes Wisconsin’s largest, most diverse city, and gives Milwaukee the advantage when it comes to summer fun. There are countless ethnic festivals happening almost every weekend, and Milwaukeeans know the best way to celebrate, well... everyone: Native Americans, Germans, African Americans, the Polish, Hispanics, Italians, the Irish... the list goes on and on. The curation of these cultures give Milwaukee a unique and delicious taste for a diverse cuisine, music, art, and (of course) beer, making a Milwaukee visit a must!

Historic Third Ward

Known as the Historic Third Ward, Milwaukee's scenic Art and Fashion District is perfect for a weekend of shopping, dining, relaxing at a spa, and catching up with the girls. Spend the morning catching up at any number of quaint coffee shops, and then walk on over to the Milwaukee Public Market to grab a bite before a day of shopping at any number of high-end apparel or boutique shops. Take a night out on the town, and live it up at countless clubs and lounges, all without breaking the bank. One thing's for sure: you'll never forget those selfies you took from the Third Ward!

Potawatomi Hotel and Casino

Odds might be in your favor when you visit the Potawatomi Hotel and Casino, and not just when you're playing your favorite games. Recent renovations, such as the 19-story, 381 room hotel, provide guests with luxurious views, top-notch service, and first-class amenities that rival Vegas' best casinos. Take a break from gaming and eat at five different restaurants with cuisine prepared by world-class chefs. Hang out at any one of the many swanky bars and lounges, while jamming to musical performances from some of the world's leading artists. Potawatomi Hotel and Casino is Milwaukee's "ace in the hole." Responsible, fun gaming is always encouraged.

Mexican Fiesta

Take the family on a trip this Summer to Mexican Fiesta, which brings the sound, culture, and taste of Mexico to Milwaukee's lakefront. Fun for everyone, Mexican Fiesta offers delicious and authentic Mexican food, drinks, games, activities, and cultural singing and dancing that lasts through the night. As they say in Milwaukee, "Mexican Fiesta is more than just a celebration; it is a vigorous declaration of community spirit at its best."

Betty Brinn Children's Museum

While the Betty Brinn Children's Museum undeniably caters to children, in reality, this is one museum with enough fun for the whole family! State-of-the-art, interactive exhibits will wow and amaze the kids, while educating them about the world. There's even an exhibit where you can be on TV! The kids might be out of school, but who says learning can't be fun? It just needs to be disguised as the critically acclaimed Betty Brinn Children's Museum. In addition, the museum is very accommodating to people with disabilities.

Jazz in the Park

Picture it: just you and your special someone lounging on a blanket in a beautiful park, eating cheese, drinking wine and listening to world-renowned jazz and blues musicians. Sounds perfect, doesn't it? Located in the historic Cathedral Square Park in downtown Milwaukee, Jazz in the Park is a ticketless concert series that hosts top musicians from around the country. Be warned though, spontaneous dancing is known to happen occasionally.
