Obama steadied our nation in 'interesting times'

By Rev. Jesse Jackson

"May you live in interesting times." This curse, attributed tenuously to the Chinese, bespeaks a preference for order over change.

We now live in interesting times and Americans are hungering for change. Yet, surprisingly, President Obama enjoys increasing popularity as he heads into the final days of his presidency.

Why is the president the most popular politician in America (outside of Bernie Sanders)? As he put it, to be elected with popular majorities twice with the name Barack Hussein Obama, something has to be going right.

And something has. He inherited an economy in free fall, losing hundreds of thousands of jobs a month. Wall Street was on the verge of collapse.

The auto companies were about to close their doors. Bush left an annual budget deficit soaring above $1 trillion. Millions were at risk of losing their homes, and millions more were losing their shirts as their homes went "underwater" -- worth less than the debt owed on them. The U.S. had suffered the worst foreign policy debacle since Vietnam in Iraq. The nation had been shamed as it watched Americans left to suffer after Katrina hit New Orleans.

Obama was elected because he represented change and hope. He passed the largest stimulus plan in history -- and staunched the free fall in jobs. He saved the financial system and began putting sensible regulations back on Wall Street.

He rescued the auto industry that has now enjoyed its best years in history. He revived competence in government. He passed comprehensive health care reform -- a flawed compromise plan but one that as provided health insurance to 20 million Americans.

He raised taxes on the rich and lowered them on the working poor. He pushed a reactionary Congress to begin addressing the real and present danger of catastrophic climate change.

The results are apparent. The deficit has been more than halved. The recovery has been slow and halting, but we've enjoyed private sector job growth for a record number of consecutive months. And now, with unemployment down around 5 percent, workers are starting to be in demand and wages have just begun to inch upward.

The president has governed with grace. His rhetoric informed and lifted us. His family provided admired role models. He suffered insult and obstruction with patience and dignity.

As he would be the first to admit, none of this is sufficient. Our politics remain polluted by big money. Our economy is still rigged to favor the few.

Our trade deficit remains extreme. The banks are still too big to fail. Workers still don't capture a fair share of the profits and productivity

"One thing is clear today. Barack Hussein Obama came to office facing harsh economic and political tempests. And he will leave office handing the baton to a successor with the wind at her or his back. More and more Americans are beginning to appreciate that now. And we will appreciate it even more in retrospect."

they help to produce. The tax evasions of the corporations and rich reach grow ever more obscene. People of color were the biggest victims of Wall Street's housing frauds, with many yet to recover. The racial wealth gap keeps growing. Workers -- white, people of color, the young and women -- all struggle against the odds.

Stunningly, the life spans of white male workers are declining, as drugs, despair, sickness and suicide take an increasing toll.

The U.S. is still mired in wars without victory across the Middle East. We still invest too much in making smart bombs and too little in developing smart children.

The climate grows more dangerous as global warming accelerates. The president who hoped to bring us together instead was hit by the bitter racial enmities that still divide us.

Now we're nearing the end of a presidential campaign marked more by scandal than by substance, featuring more insults than ideas. Donald Trump captured the Republican nomination by stoking fear and anger. Both candidates have been plagued by scandals, real and invented.

Contradictions result. The country hungers for a change in course but is fearful about what comes next. The two candidates for the presidency offering change are looked on with unprecedented disfavor, while the incumbent president enjoys rising popularity.

President Obama has suggested that a president is something like a sprinter in a relay race. No one racer can determine the outcome.

Your job is to run your part of the race as well as you can -- and then hand on the baton to the next. It's more complicated than that, of course.

The best presidents change the direction of the race to insure that their successors have the wind at their backs.

One thing is clear today. Barack Hussein Obama came to office facing harsh economic and political tempests.

And he will leave office handing the baton to a successor with the wind at her or his back. More and more Americans are beginning to appreciate that now. And we will appreciate it even more in retrospect.

Re-Tool Yourself to Re-Enter the Workplace

By Felicia Brown

Are you looking for a new job or considering a career change?

Well it's no secret that traversing today's job market is not as easy as it was perhaps 20 years ago. In the world of social media and job hunting online, it can become even more difficult to navigate the myriad social and professional platforms. It may require you to regroup, get reenergized and rework your job search plan.

Reenergize Your Job Search

Twenty years ago, the typical job search involved looking through your local newspaper to find that ideal job. Now, thanks to the Internet, most, if not all, jobs are found online; although there may be a few in your local Post or Sentinel. But even using the Internet as the only way to find a job is not enough.

The key is that you shift from "finding" a job to "being found," which is why you want to continually cultivate your personal and professional networks.

Let people know you are looking so they can help spread the news and put in a good word for you.

Revisit Your Inventory of Skills

While searching for that ideal job, take a moment to list the skills you've acquired through work, volunteering, school and special projects.

This will help you to think about skills that perhaps you forgot about or overlooked.

Once that's completed, seek jobs that align with some of or the majority of those skills. If you are seeking a career change look at those skills are transferable to a new job you're interested in.

To help you get started, draw four columns — one, list of all your skills; two, list how you applied each skill; three, list the results of applying the skills; and, fourth, list the job where you obtained the skill.

Rework Your Résumé

Now that you have found the job(s) you are interested in, make sure your résumé speaks to your ability and skill to do the job.

If you are applying for several jobs, you may need multiple résumés that are targeted to specific job openings.

Include key words or industry-specific terminology. Be sure your résumé focuses on skills and outcomes, rather than a list of experiences.

You can visit www.aarp.org/Work for help creating résumés, cover letters and more.

Rethink Your Social Media Strategy

How well are you utilizing social media to get your next job search? It's important to understand that in an age of social media, having an online presence can be critical to landing that next big gig. For example, many employers frequently use social networking sites, like LinkedIn, to find suitable candidates. There they can quickly see your skills, connections and referrals.

OUT OF FOCUS

Follow companies for hiring updates, like setting up job alerts on sites such as Indeed and Simply Hired. And harness the power of all the social media tools to get your skills more visibility.

Your presence on social media shows recruiters that you are a real person and have relationships with colleagues.

This is why being on LinkedIn is so important — it shows that you are connected to other professionals, either in the same industry or related fields.

Another great way to use social media, especially if you are looking to make a career change, is to get involved in the conversation online.

On Twitter you can join conversations about any topic under the sun and begin to learn about the new field you want go into.

On Facebook you can join groups or follow organizations and interact with them that way.

Rebuild Your Brand

When you think about your brand, think of your favorite clothing designer or shoemaker and why you admire their garments so. It's very similar to how people view you.

Your brand is your billboard. It illustrates your passions, values, talents and qualities that hopefully you are building every day.

As an experienced worker, reigniting your career search can prove to be challenging. AARP and AARP's TEK Academy (www.aarp.org/Academy) has a host of webinars, courses and online resources to assist in your job search. In addition, there are several career strength-building workshops that range from learning technology to office skills.

Notice of General Election and Sample Ballots November 8, 2016

OFFICE OF THE MILWAUKEE COUNTY BOARD OF ELECTION COMMISSIONERS

TO THE VOTERS OF THE CITY OF MILWAUKEE

Notice is hereby given of a general election to be held in the City of Milwaukee on November 8, 2016, at which the officers named below shall be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office and under the appropriate party or other designation, each in its proper column, in the sample ballot published with this notice.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

Upon entering the polling place, a voter shall state his or her name and address, show an acceptable form of photo identification and sign the poll book before being permitted to vote. If a voter is not registered to vote, a voter may register to vote at the polling place serving his or her residence if the voter provides proof of residence. Where ballots are distributed to voters, the initials of two inspectors must appear on the ballot. Upon being permitted to vote, the voter shall retire alone to a voting booth or machine and cast his or her ballot except that a voter who is a parent or guardian may be accompanied by the voter's minor child or minor ward. An election official may inform the voter of the proper manner for casting a vote, but the official may not in any manner advise or indicate a particular voting choice.

Voting for President and Vice President

A vote for candidates for President and Vice President is a vote for the presidential electors of those candidates. A write-in vote for President and Vice President must designate the name of a presidential candidate. A write-in vote for a candidate for President only will be counted. A write-in vote for a candidate for Vice President only will not be counted.

Where Optical Scan Voting is Used

The voter shall fill in the oval next to the name of the candidate of his or her choice for each office for which he or she intends to vote. To vote for a person whose name does not appear on the ballot, the voter shall write in the name of the person of his or her choice in the space provided for a write-in vote, and fill in the oval next to the write-in line. When voting for President and Vice President, the voter shall fill in the oval next to the set of candidates (ticket) for president and vice president for whom he or she intends to vote. To vote for a Presidential ticket that does not appear on the ballot, the voter shall write in the names of persons of his or her choice in the spaces provided and fill in the oval next to the write-in lines.

When using an electronic ballot marking device ("AutoMARK") to mark an optical scan ballot, the voter shall touch the screen at the name of the candidate of his or her choice for each office for which he or she intends to vote. To vote for a person whose name does not appear on the ballot, the voter shall type in the name of the person of his or her choice in the space provided for a write-in vote. When voting for President and Vice President, the voter shall touch the screen at the set of candidates (ticket) for president and vice president for whom he or she intends to vote. To vote for a Presidential ticket that does not appear on the ballot, the voter shall type in the names of the persons of his or her choice in the spaces provided.

The vote should not be cast in any other manner. Not more than five minutes' time shall be allowed inside a voting booth. Sample ballots or other materials to assist the voter in marking his or her ballot may be taken into the booth and copied. The sample ballot shall not be shown to anyone so as to reveal how the ballot is marked.

If a voter spoils an optical scan ballot, he or she shall return it to an election official who shall issue another ballot in its place, but not more than three ballots shall be issued to any one voter. If the ballot has not been initiated by two inspectors or is defective in any other way, the voter shall return it to the election official who shall issue a proper ballot in its place.

After Voting the Ballot

After an official optical scan ballot is marked, it shall be inserted in the security sleeve so the marks do not show. The voter shall then insert the ballot in the voting device and discard the sleeve, or deliver the ballot to an inspector for deposit. The voter shall leave the polling place promptly.

A voter may select an individual to assist in casting his or her vote if the voter declares to the presiding official that he or she is unable to read, has difficulty reading, writing, or understanding English, or that due to disability is unable to cast his or her ballot. The selected individual rendering assistance may not be the voter's employer or an agent of that employer or an officer or agent of a labor organization which represents the voter.

Samples of the official ballots are published with this notice.

As The Nation Waits, WPR & NPR Cover Election 2016 Through The Night

MADISON— After the last ballots are cast and the nation and world wait on who will be the next President of the United States, WPR and NPR will feature live updates and analysis of this historic race plus coverage of key national matchups, including the Wisconsin U.S. Senate race, and legislative elections around the state.

“Our election night broadcast will give hosts, reporters and listeners the first chance to put this most extraordinary political season behind us,” said WPR’s Capitol Bureau Chief Shawn Johnson.

The coverage kicks off at 6 p.m. on the Ideas Network with a special hour of NPR’s On Point, giving people across the country the opportunity to join the national conversation.

At 7 p.m. all WPR stations will pick up with the NPR Politics Team as they preview of the night’s Presidential and battleground legislative coverage.

After the polls close in Wisconsin at 8 p.m. Johnson will anchor WPR’s statewide reporting of state legislative, congressional and senatorial elections. “After hearing months upon months of spin, it’s liberating to learn what actually happened,” he added.

Joining him will be WPR’s Rob Ferrett and Wisconsin Public Television’s Frederica Freyberg. We’ll hear from reporters at the election night parties for Russ Feingold, Ron Johnson, Paul Ryan and 8th Congressional District candidates Mike Gallagher and Tom Nelson.

Throughout the night we’ll check in with NPR at the Hillary Clinton and Donald Trump election events and for analysis and from reporters across the country as NPR’s coverage will continue through 4 a.m.

Before the sun rises over Wisconsin Wednesday morning, the BBC will offer perspectives and reactions from across the globe. Your opportunity to join the discussion begins at 6 a.m. on The Ideas Network, where you’ll hear from reporters, political scientists, pundits, candidates and listeners across the state and nation on The Joy Cardin Show, On Point.

The Kathleen Dunn Show and Central Time. “Hearing voices from around Wisconsin brings a variety of unique perspectives to the conversation,” said WPR Ideas Network Director Sheryl Gasser.

“We look forward to hearing from listeners as we explore the results of the election and talk about how we move forward as a state and a nation.”

More detail on WPR’s election coverage is available at wpr.org. Information on candidates, issues, polling places and other voter resources is available at wisconsinvote.org person named above as respondent:

You are notified that your spouse has filed a lawsuit or other legal action against you. The Petition, which is attached, states the nature and basis of the legal action.

Within 20 days of receiving this Summons, you must provide a written response, as that term is used in Ch.
802, Wis. Stats., to the Petition. The Court may reject or disregard a response that does not follow the requirements of the statutes.

The response must be sent or delivered to the following government office: Clerk of Court Milwaukee County

consin 53233.

The response must also be mailed or delivered within 20 days to the petitioner at the address above.

It is recommended, but not required that you have an attorney help or represent you

If you do not provide a proper response within 20 days, the court may grant judgment against you and you may lose your right to object to anything that is or may be incorrect in the Petition.

A judgment may be enforced as provided by law. A Judgment may become a lien against any real estate you own now or in the future and may also be enforced by garnishment or seizure of property.
